BACKGROUND

Scale AI launched a call for projects to find ideas and solutions that could help Canada meet the COVID-19 challenge through technology and artificial intelligence.

This AI-based solution makes it possible to optimize the identification and prioritization of critical cargo arriving by container at the Port of Montreal to ensure rapid availability and distribution of essential goods.

OBJECTIVES

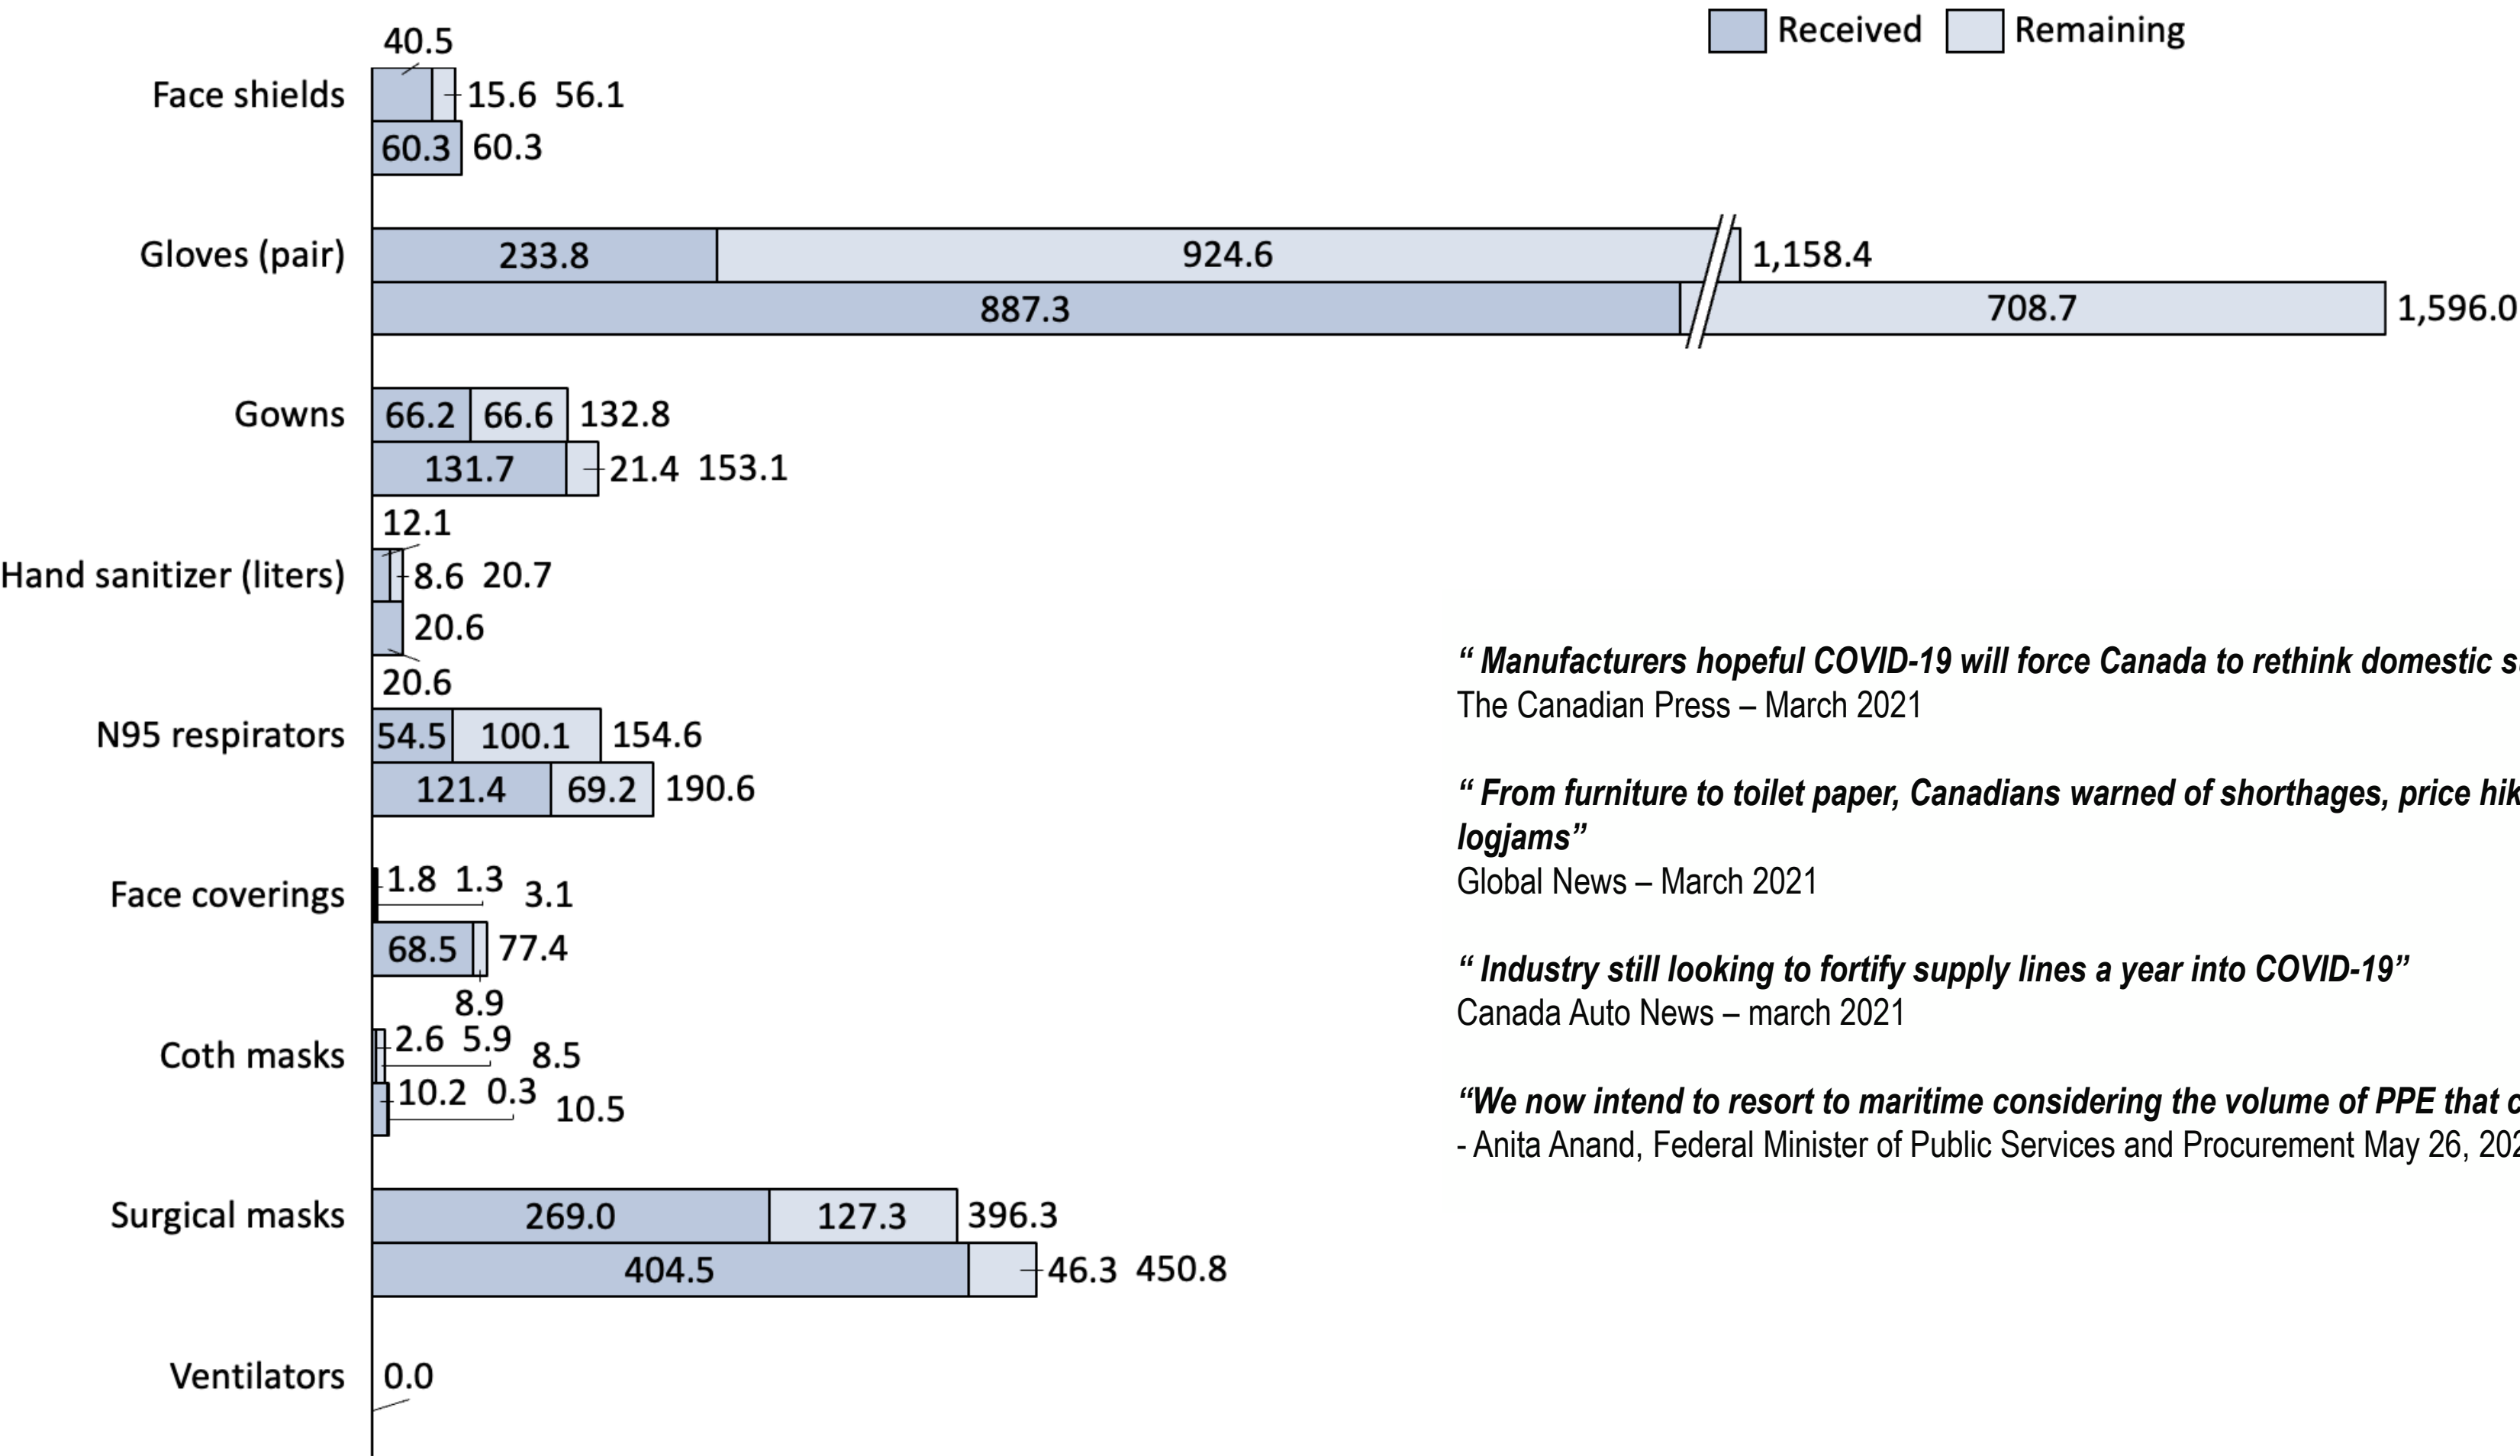

To make it easier to identify urgent containers to be shipped by truck and rail, and in turn, to cut critical freight transport time;

To support businesses in a comprehensive approach to outreach initiatives that contribute to the smooth flow of freight transport.

Items ordered ans received (in Millions, information as of April 26, 2021)

“ Manufacturers hopeful COVID-19 will force Canada to rethink domestic supply chains ”
The Canadian Press – March 2021

“ From furniture to toilet paper, Canadians warned of shortages, price hikes amid trade logjams”
Global News – March 2021

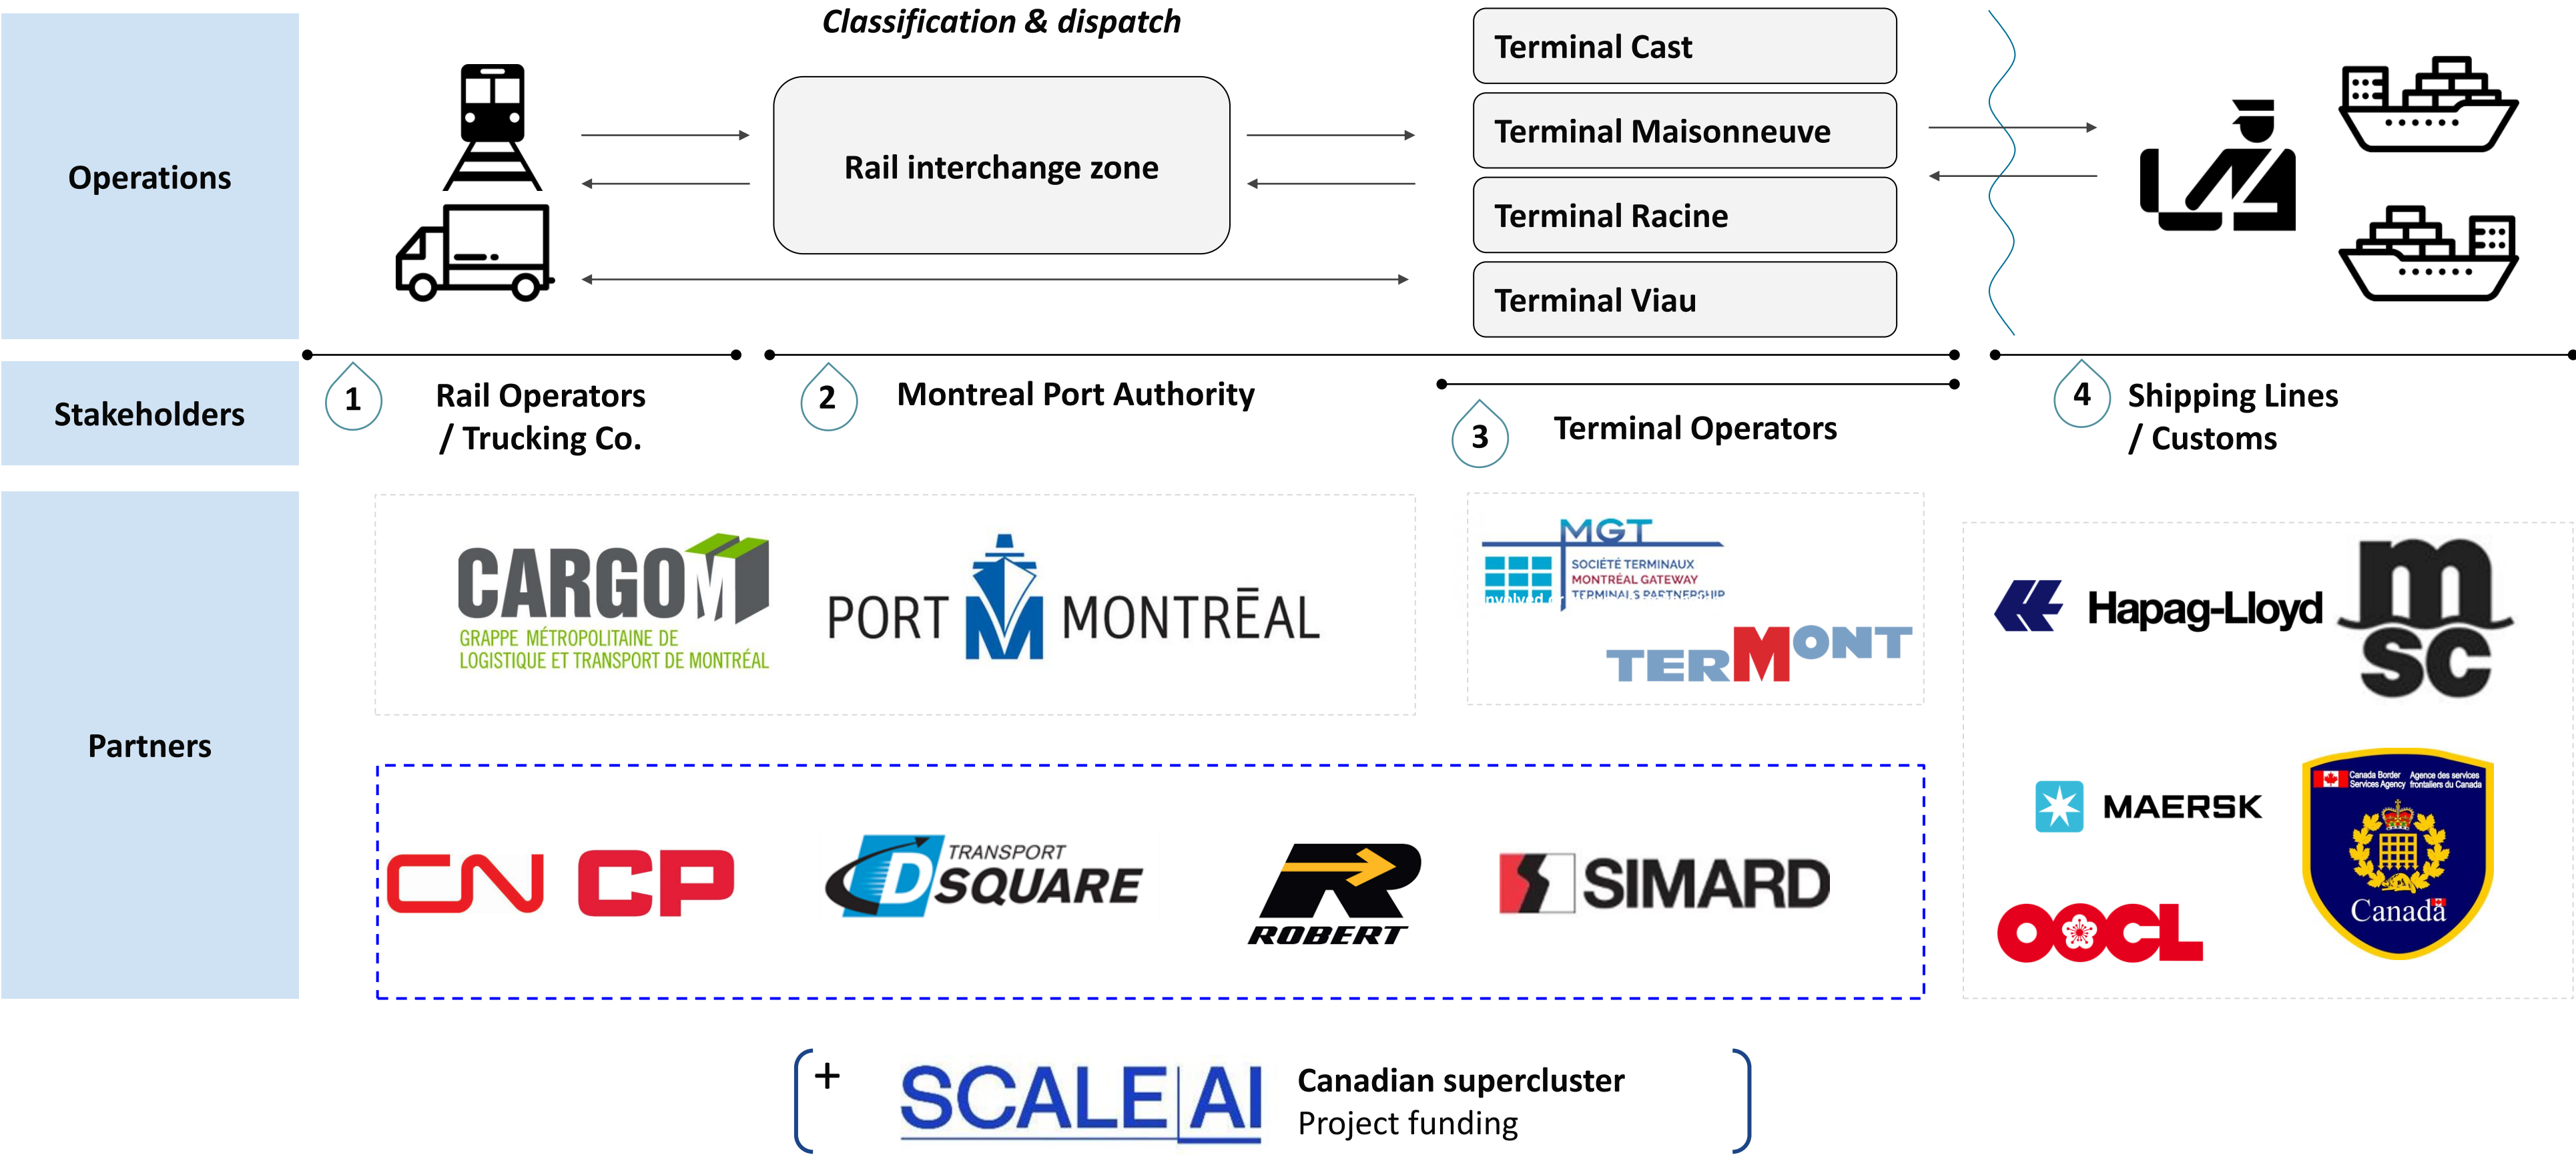

“ Industry still looking to fortify supply lines a year into COVID-19”
Canada Auto News – march 2021

“We now intend to resort to maritime considering the volume of PPE that could be shipped”
- Anita Anand, Federal Minister of Public Services and Procurement May 26, 2020
